Food Tank is a nonprofit organization focused on building a global community for safe, healthy, nourished eaters. We spotlight environmentally, socially, and economically sustainable ways of alleviating hunger, obesity, and poverty, and we create networks of people, organizations, and content to push for change in the food system.

Food Tank was founded by Danielle Nierenberg and Bernard Pollack in January of 2013 in Chicago, Illinois. Food Tank is a registered 501(c)(3), and all donations are tax-deductible. Danielle Nierenberg has served as President since the organization’s inception with Bernard Pollack as the Chairman of the Board of Directors. The organization is headquartered in Baltimore, Maryland.
The last year has shown us the importance of healthy diets. COVID-19 is not just a virus, but also a diet-related disease. The pandemic exposed massive vulnerabilities and inequities across our food and agriculture systems that demanded immediate attention. Meanwhile, the urgency of addressing the climate crisis is unfortunately greater than ever.

We now have a real opportunity—and a responsibility. This is the time to reset our food systems from farm to fork, and even beyond.

It’s clear that human health and the environment are inextricably linked. We need food and agriculture systems that provide adequate and equitable food for all—systems that don’t pose an undue burden on ecosystems, biodiversity, and livelihoods.

We need collaboration and transdisciplinary approaches, a model that realizes the interconnectedness between humans, animals, plants, and their shared environment. We must also appreciate and honor the richness of culinary and dietary traditions and diversity.

Food Tank understands both the urgency and opportunity coming out of 2020. You can expect an unprecedented level of programming from us in the coming years as we embark on highlighting how farmers, researchers, extension workers, scientists, businesses, policymakers, chefs, and other stakeholders are finding ways to change the food system post-pandemic.

These activities will include bold and ambitious levels of outreach. We are forging partnerships with major academic institutions across all 50 states and the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, co-hosting themed Food Tank Summits in each with a goal of nearly 25,000 live attendees across three years. The events will feature more than 750 speakers as part of discussions moderated by more than 250 food and agriculture journalists, and our intention is that every single event will also be available via livestream.

We have announced events over the next year, starting October 2, 2021, taking place with academic partners that include: University of California-Santa Barbara, Metropolitan University of Denver, University of Illinois-Urbana Champaign, North Dakota State University, Duke University, Spelman College, Hutson-Tillotson University, Emory University, University of the District of Columbia, Hunter College, University of San Francisco, Harvard University, and more. We will be developing core curriculum for food studies programs throughout our tour as well as releasing a book, Resetting the Food System, with Island Press.

This year, Food Tank’s original musical about the climate crisis and food insecurity—in collaboration with a Grammy, Tony, and Emmy-nominated creative and artistic team—was selected to debut at the largest theater festival in the world, the 2021 Edinburgh Festival Fringe in August.

Finally, of course, we will continue to publish daily, cutting-edge original research highlighting stories of hope in the food system, release reports and white papers, hold ongoing educational programming for policymakers on Capitol Hill, host twice-weekly live casts and podcast discussions, release our weekly newsletter, and participate and lead dozens of events across a wide variety of themes throughout the year.

With all of our live events canceled last year due to the pandemic, we are honored that individual donations allowed us to weather the loss of income. It is because of you—each of you as Food Tank members and supporters—that we are still able to continue our work.

Thank you for being a part of our growing movement and for everything you do to make our food system more sustainable.

Last year, in recognition of Food Tank’s team and our army of volunteers’ work, I and Food Tank were recognized as the Julia Child Prize recipient. This was the honor of a lifetime. Onward and upward!

All the best,

Danielle Nierenberg
President | Food Tank
While Food Tank takes a holistic view of food, agriculture, and environmental issues, our main areas of focus and work both last year and in the year ahead revolve around these 12 themes.

FOOD AND THE CLIMATE CRISIS

This past year showed that the need for climate action is more urgent than ever. Food Tank explored food systems’ role in climate mitigation by highlighting solutions already at work with articles like “36 Organizations Helping Solve the Climate Crisis,” publishing op-eds from thought leaders like Rodale Institute CEO Jeff Moyer on how we can reduce emissions while feeding the world healthy foods, and hosting experts like Dr. Rattan Lal, renowned soil scientist and 2020 World Food Prize recipient, on our podcast for a global audience.

REGENERATIVE AGRICULTURE

The adoption of regenerative agricultural practices can help fight climate change and result in improved soil health and fertility, biodiversity, water conservation, and more nutrient-dense crops. Last year, we published about how companies including Patagonia, Dr. Bronner’s, and the Rodale Institute came together to launch the Regenerative Organic Certification to prioritize soil health and farmworker justice in food products, and Danielle spoke at the Rodale Institute’s Annual Organic Field Day. We also shined a spotlight on the solutions already at work with articles like “17 Organizations Promoting Regenerative Agriculture Around the Globe.”

FOOD FOR HEALTH (FOOD IS MEDICINE)

Diet-related diseases have made people significantly more vulnerable to severe illness and death from COVID-19, highlighting the urgent issue of unhealthy diets and unequal access to good food across the globe. At Food Tank’s virtual summit, “Resetting the Food System from Farm to Fork,” in partnership with the Barilla Center for Food & Nutrition, we hosted a panel titled “Food is Medicine” with leaders like Dr. Mark Hyman to discuss the path forward. On our podcast, Dr. David L. Katz, founding director of the Yale-Griffin Prevention Research Center, discussed the importance of a healthy diet in the face of COVID-19, and nutritionist Maureen Muketha shared how her food security organization Tule Vyema is working to end malnutrition in Kenya with sack farming.
FOCUS AREAS

TRANSFORMING ANIMAL AGRICULTURE
Supply chain disruptions due to the pandemic exposed unsustainable and inhumane practices across the industrial food system. As more eaters became aware of and interested in the source of their protein, we published about the complexities of meat, plant, and cell-based protein production. For example, our article series in partnership with Lightlife explored how the meat and plant-based industries can support one another, “Bridging the Gap Between the Plant-Based Protein and Meat Industries,” and our Farmer Friday series in partnership with Niman Ranch shared best practices in sustainable hog farming. We also hosted Aleph Farms Co-Founder and CEO Didier Toubia on Food Talk Live to discuss the present and future of cultivated meat and the role it can play in human and environmental health.

FOOD JUSTICE, BIPOC AND WOMEN FOOD LEADERSHIP, AND THE LABOR MOVEMENT
Food Tank is run by women leaders and has made it a priority to highlight women working in agriculture throughout the year. This year, we also launched our Food Justice Fellowship program to help our team explore a wide variety of issues around equity and justice in the food system, including but not limited to: food apartheid, land access, food and seed sovereignty, food chain workers’ rights, and climate justice.

LOCAL FOOD SYSTEMS, FOOD LITERACY, AND FOOD-RESILIENT CITIES
Local and regional food systems quickly pivoted in response to the massive disruptions to our global supply chains this past year. On our twice-weekly podcast, we shared what was working in a time of crisis by interviewing leaders like Joi Chevalier, Founder of The Cook’s Nook and member of the Austin-Travis County Food Policy Board; Marcel Van Ooyen, President of GrowNYC; and Helena Norberg-Hodge, Founder of Local Futures and The International Alliance for Localization (IAL). Danielle also spoke at the 15th Session of Cities on the Frontline about the need for food-resilient cities.

BREAKING DOWN SILOS AND SUPPORTING FAMILY FARMERS
Food Tank continues to shine a spotlight on family farmers working on the ground every day to nourish their communities. Our monthly Farmer Friday series in partnership with Niman Ranch profiled family farmers sustainably and humanely raising hogs and cattle in the U.S., and we regularly host Instagram Live conversations to connect farmers’ stories to our global followers. At the 22nd Annual Niman Ranch Hog Farmer Appreciation Celebration, Danielle joined a panel to discuss how to achieve a more balanced, resilient system that is better for our health, communities, animals, and food and agriculture sector workers.

FIXING FOOD BUSINESS

Food Tank has taken the lead in communicating best practices in sustainable food business as a critical part of changing the system. We run the largest peer group of Chief Sustainability Officers (CSOs) and Impact Directors at some of the most successful and cutting-edge food businesses in the world, facilitating best practice sharing, peer networking, and mentoring, and will feature several public events in 2021. We also hosted Whole Foods Market President A.C. Gallo at our virtual summit, “Resetting the Food System from Farm to Fork,” to discuss the future of food business.

HUNGER, MALNUTRITION, AND THE GLOBAL FOOD SYSTEM

The COVID-19 pandemic has exacerbated food insecurity across the globe, leaving the most vulnerable increasingly at risk. In addition to our daily coverage, Danielle spoke at Washington Post Live to explore unexpected aspects of food insecurity—from hidden hunger on college campuses to the 20 million American schoolchildren who rely on free or reduced-price school meals. Danielle also moderated a discussion on “Righting Checks in an Equitable Future Food System” at the SXSW Future of Food panel presented by The Kroger Zero Hunger | Zero Waste Foundation.

WISDOM OF INDIGENOUS FOODWAYS

Food Tank honored and highlighted the wisdom of Indigenous foodways through the year, hosting leaders such as Colby Duren, Director of the University of Arkansas Indigenous Food and Agriculture Initiative, and Adae Romero-Briones, Director at the First Nations Development Institute, on our twice-weekly live podcast. We also published articles like “28 Organizations Promoting Indigenous Food Sovereignty” on FoodTank.com, shared to our global subscribers via Food Tank’s weekly newsletter.

INTERSECTION OF FOOD AND TECHNOLOGY

Food Tank continues to lead the discussion around the intersection of technological innovation and the U.S. food system through research, storytelling, and collective action. This past year, we spearheaded the 25-member Refresh Working Group, released a policy platform, and partnered with Chloe Sorvino of Forbes to co-host a week of vibrant, interactive virtual panels featuring 25 speakers to debate the role of technology in our food system.

FOOD LOSS AND FOOD WASTE

Throughout the year, we hosted leaders such as ReFED Executive Director Dana Gunders on Food Talk Live to discuss the consequences of food waste as well as the people and organizations that are working to combat it. We highlighted “20 Organizations Diverting Food Waste to Provide Meals for People in Need” and “23 Organizations Eliminating Food Waste During COVID-19” on FoodTank.com, and Danielle moderated a conversation about food loss and food waste at the virtual celebration of the International Day of Awareness of Food Loss and Waste organized by the FAO and UN Environment.
150 Live Virtual Events with Leading Food System Changemakers

Food Tank hosted live discussions and edited podcasts with nearly 150 leading experts, thought leaders, and practitioners over the past year, making sense of the pandemic’s impact on the food system in real time and reimagining what a sustainable food future might look like post-pandemic.

LAUNCHING A FOOD AND TECHNOLOGY POLICY PLATFORM

Food Tank served as the convener of the Refresh Working Group (see page 26 for member list), which brings together food, agriculture, and technology experts from across the United States to ensure the positive application and responsible use of emerging technologies and data across these sectors. The group’s goal is to ensure robust and healthy agriculture, and food marketplaces where innovation thrives and where small and big players alike can drive positive improvements throughout the global food system.
Food Tank hosted an ongoing series of discussions around the intersection of food, technology, and policy and released a major report, which focused on these five overarching themes:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Strengthening supply chains</th>
<th>Empowering consumers</th>
<th>The power of connectivity: Broadband expansion in rural communities</th>
<th>Protection and accessibility: Ensuring the fair use of data in the food system</th>
<th>Reducing inequities through a digitally skilled workforce</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>to build trust and improve food security</td>
<td>through transparency</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Recognizing that no good policy is one-size-fits-all, we presented these five policy focus areas along with our recommendations for next steps, evaluated with the context of federal, state, and local needs. By establishing common rules of the road for the use of data and technology in the food system, stakeholders can be confident that they are acting responsibly while taking advantage of the opportunities offered by technological advancements in agriculture and food.

As part of a series of conversations exploring the policy points, we hosted more than 30 speakers with journalist Chloe Sorvino of Forbes Magazine. These speakers included:

- Ali Lange, Public Policy Manager, Google
- Amy Wu, Founder and Chief Content Director, From Farms to Incubators
- Chris Ramsaroop, Founding Member, Justice for Migrant Workers
- Chris Roper, Owner, Chris Roper Services
- Dana Gunders, Executive Director, ReFED

2020-2021 IMPACT

U.N. FOOD SYSTEMS SUMMIT

2030 is the deadline to achieve all 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The next decade is a chance to remake our future. Through the “Decade of Action,” we all have a part to play in the transition towards sustainable economic, social, and environmental development. Sustainable food systems are at the heart of this.

In a rapidly changing world, food systems face substantial challenges, including the COVID-19 pandemic acting as a multiplier of food and nutrition insecurity. Globally, 2 billion people are malnourished. More than 700 million adults are obese while at least 820 million suffer from hunger—a statistic that has no doubt increased as a result of the pandemic. And about one third of the global harvest is lost or wasted. Biodiversity is declining, water and land are increasingly degraded, and climate change is posing adverse impacts on agricultural production and livelihoods.

We must act now to address the impending global food emergency and avoid the worst impacts of the pandemic, while seizing upon the opportunity of resetting food systems. Over the next 20 years, food systems will need to nourish 10 billion people while also protecting precious natural resources for future generations. The spread of COVID-19 has demonstrated the fragility of global food systems, but it also offers opportunities to transform the way we produce, distribute, and consume food.

In partnership with the Barilla Foundation, Food Tank held a virtual summit exploring how to reset our food system from farm to fork. The event featured more than 30 speakers:

CHIEF SUSTAINABILITY OFFICERS GROUP

In 2020, we started a CSO group comprised of more than 80 innovative business leaders, because we see a growing opportunity for peer-to-peer sharing about best practices among the CSO and Impact Directors (in some cases founders, CEOs and CMOs) and a need for broader networking and discussion within this group of peers. Food Tank’s extensive platforms highlight and share food business initiatives in hopes of inspiring more action and replicating best practice sustainability efforts.

Our CSO and Impact Directors group is by invite-only. To avoid any conflict of interest with our editorial, policy positions, etc., we don’t accept any payments or membership dues whatsoever to participate.

We joined Food Tank partners around many other themed events including:

With the Smithsonian and the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), we presented a series of conversations to commemorate World Food Day featuring Leah Penniman (Author, Farming While Black), Laura Riley (Writer, The Washington Post), Chef José Andrés (World Central Kitchen), and Vimlendra Sharan (Director, FAO Liaison Office for North America).

With Hunter College’s Food Policy Center, we explored “What’s Next for Restaurants Post-COVID?” The event featured incredible leaders like Camilla Marcus, Naama Tamir, Chef JJ Johnson, Tom Colicchio, Andrew Rigie, and Salil Mehta.

With the James Beard Foundation and the First Nations Institute, a series of discussions around expanding our vision of roles in Indigenous food sovereignty. Featured speakers included Sharon Ka’iulani Odom (Program Director, Roots Kokua Kalihi Valley, Kalihi, HI), Monica Nuvamsa, Hopi (Executive Director, The Hopi Foundation), Clayton Harvey, White Mountain Apache (Production Manager, Ndée Bikiyáá/The People’s Farm), and more.

With Cornell University, we hosted a panel around a new report, “Socio-Technical Innovation Bundles for Agri-Food Systems Transformation,” led by Cornell University. Panelists Chris Barrett, Tim Benton, Jessica Fanzo, Mario Herrero, and Rebecca Nelson discussed topics ranging from climate-smart agri-food systems to health and nutrition, including actionable recommendations that have the ability to create a more sustainable, climate-friendly, and equitable food system.

With Table 81, we co-hosted a panel to discuss the implications of the election results on the food movement. Panelists included Katherine Miller (Table 81), Navina Khanna (Heal Food Alliance), Kathleen Merrigan (Arizona State University-Swette Center), Robert Martin (John Hopkins University-Center for a Livable Future), Christopher Bradshaw (Dreaming Out Loud), Patricia Griffin (NVG), and Devita Davison (Food Lab Detroit).

We co-hosted a series of conversations around “Righting Checks in an Equitable Future Food System” as part of the SXSW Future of Food, which Food Tank partnered on. Speakers included Temple Grandin (Colorado State University, Regenerative Agriculture), Sunny Parr (Kroger Foundation), Joi Chevalier (The Cook’s Nook), Kerry Rupp (True Wealth Ventures), Roman Gonzalez (Gardenio), Tam Hawkins (Greater Austin Black Chamber of Commerce), and many more.

EARTH DAY

Food Tank has partnered with the Barilla Foundation to feature food and agriculture experts and chefs from around the world to explore culturally adapted diets that are healthy for people and the planet.

Unlike recent reports, the Double Pyramid doesn’t prescribe one diet for all. Instead, it recognizes how farmers, Indigenous peoples, elders, and cooks of all ages and cultures have been producing sustainable and healthy diets for generations. Diets that are nutrient-dense, plant-forward, and delicious. Speakers include:

- Barbara Buchner, Climate Policy Initiative
- Million Belay, Alliance for Food Sovereignty in Africa
- Elise Golan, USDA
- Gabriele Riccardi, University of Naples
- Sophie Hieke, EUFIC
- Chiara Pavan, Venissa
- Don Bustos, Santa Cruz Farm
- Riccardo Valentini, University of Tuscia
- Paola Leoncini Bartoli, UNESCO
- Peggy Chan, Grassroots Initiative Consultancy
- Manjit Gill, ITC Hotels
- Vincent Medina, mak-‘amham/Cafe Ohlone
- Valerie Segrest, Native American Agriculture Fund
- Mariana Tejerina, Catalino

DOZENS OF ADDITIONAL EVENTS

These are just a few examples of the dozens more major events Food Tank organized or spoke at this year including with: Food Matters Live 2021, Nature Sustainability Expert Panel, Washington Post Live: Fighting Food Insecurity, Oxford Real Farming Conference, Foreign Policy Magazine Virtual Summit: Food+, Alaska Food Festival & Conference, Regenerative Earth Summit, the T20 Summit, Global Landscapes Forum, FoodTec Expo 2020, VERGE 20, Food & Wine Magazine Conference, Fighting Hunger at Every Table presented by Business Insider, Food History Gala with the Julia Child Foundation and the Smithsonian, Food Forever Conference, 2020 Concordia Annual Summit, Teaching the Complexity of Food Sustainability with the Barilla Foundation, SW Disaster Preparedness Festival, WA Women’s Foundation Intersect Symposium, Niman Ranch Hog Farmer Appreciation Celebration, Cities on the Frontline Speaker Series presented by the Rockefeller Foundation, Desertification and Drought Day 2020, and more.
Looking Ahead to 2021-2022 and Beyond

Three new major Food Tank initiatives launching in 2021 in addition to our other projects.

- Food Tank is embarking on a four-year, 50-state “Resetting the Food System” event tour, co-hosted everywhere by top academic institutions.

  Event themes include regenerative agriculture, animal agriculture, the climate crisis, food loss and food waste, the wisdom of Indigenous foodways, food is medicine, food justice, and more.

  More than 500 live attendees are expected at each event as well as thousands of viewers joining via live-stream.

  Each discussion will be moderated on stage by top food and agriculture journalists. Moderators from past events included reporters from the New York Times, Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, and NPR.
Partners include Harvard, Yale, Vanderbilt, Duke, Emory, New York University, Spelman, Tufts, Ohio State University, and dozens more.

Through hundreds of on-the-ground interviews across all 50 states, Food Tank is building a documentary film series.

With Island Press, Food Tank is publishing a book and academic curriculum based on these 50 state projects that will serve as a practical, bold, and actionable roadmap.

Food Tank’s interactive original musical series “WeCameToDance” about the climate crisis and food insecurity is the brainchild of Food Tank founders Bernard Pollack and Danielle Nierenberg, renowned international music producer Douglas Romanow (credits include Justin Bieber), and Grammy-nominated musician and United Nations ambassador Rocky Dawuni.

The immersive show is inspired by the incredible response to a charity event that Food Tank organized to benefit the World Food Program USA and Feeding America. Some of Broadway’s biggest stars brought three raucous nights of music, dancing, and activism to life—drawing sold-out crowds and raising tens of thousands of dollars.

The show was selected to be presented at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe, the world’s most prestigious theater festival, in 2021 (assuming COVID-19 safety allows) as well as a limited run in London and also at SXSW 2022.

With more than 1,500 grassroots nonprofit partnerships in all 50 states and around the world, including four United Nations organizations, Food Tank plans to onboard participants for post-show, long-term engagement in food system volunteer opportunities.

Ongoing Food Education for Policymakers (Expanding to the U.S. Senate)

Food Tank partners with The George Washington University and U.S. Congresswoman Chellie Pingree to convene bi-partisan regular events to educate policymakers on Capitol Hill about food and agricultural issues.

This is already one of the most successful ongoing education series on the Hill with more than six dozen Congressional offices participating in the events. Topics include food and technology, food is medicine, food security as national security, food loss and waste, children’s nutrition, and more.

The series will return post-pandemic in 2021 and expand to the U.S. Senate.
